Survey Methodology

TargetSmart designed and administered this multimodal survey. Two-hundred and sixteen interviews were conducted online among panelists who were matched to the TargetSmart voter file (227 weighted) and 286 interviews were conducted online using text-to-web and email-to-web (53 email, 233 SMS) solicits from the TargetSmart voter file (273 weighted). In total, the survey reached 502 adults (500 weighted), age 18 or older, who are registered to vote in Tennessee. Quotas were designed to reflect the demographic and geographic distribution of registered voters in Tennessee. The data were weighted by gender, age, race on file, TargetSmart Partisan Score, TargetSmart High School Only Score, and region by media market to ensure an accurate reflection of the population.

The credibility interval (the theoretical margin of error for a blended-methodology poll that relies partially on telephone-based probability sampling, and partially on non-probability based online panel sampling) is +/- 4.4%. The margin of error for subgroups is larger and varies. Percentage totals may not add up precisely due to rounding.
Issue Environment and the Role of State Government
Tennessee voters are highly pessimistic about the direction of the U.S. (23 percent right direction, 66 percent wrong track), however they are more mixed about the direction of the state (40 percent right direction, 44 percent wrong track).

The coronavirus surfaces as a top issue priority for Tennesseans, with 31 percent citing it as the most important facing the state. Public opinion on the state of the pandemic is quite pessimistic, as 53 percent of voters believe the worst is still yet to come.

A majority of Tennessee voters indicate their feelings about how Black people and Black communities are treated in America have changed over the last month in light of recent events (51 percent).

Election and Democracy Reforms
Democracy Key Findings: Government’s Role, Voting Options, and Intersection with Race

Tennessee

- Public opinion is unanimous when it comes to state government’s role in election administration -- 96 percent of voters believe state government should have a “major” or “some” role in safely and fairly administering elections.

- Voting early in-person emerges as the most popular voting option for voters in Tennessee (46 percent). Voting in-person on Election Day is also quite popular (37 percent), while voting by mail is the least popular option (15 percent).

- Tennessee voters are split on whether systematic racism in the voting system has prevented Black people and communities from participating in our democracy, but over 6-in-10 voters want state government to reduce barriers that stop Black people from voting.
Democracy Key Findings: Voting Reforms

Tennessee

- Tennesseans strongly support and highly prioritize voting early in person. Nearly 9-in-10 voters support lengthening the early voting window and letting voters cast a ballot in-person up through the day before Election Day (88 percent).

- Although voting by mail is the least popular voting option for Tennesseans, voters still strongly support policies intended to make the vote-by-mail process more efficient and streamlined.

- Two-in-three voters support allowing any registered Tennessee voter to vote-by-mail (66 percent), and 52 percent of voters support mailing all registered Tennessee voters applications to vote-by-mail.

- What’s more, Tennessee voters are broadly supportive of reforms to make processing mail-in ballots easier. Over 6-in-10 voters support counting mail-in ballots postmarked by and received after Election Day (62 percent).
Democracy Key Findings: Coronavirus and Voting

Tennessee

• Most voters in Tennessee plan to vote in-person, whether it be early or on Election Day, so it follows that they strongly agree with measures to increase safety and sanitary standards at polling places.

• Ninety-two percent of voters agree that poll workers should be provided with PPE like masks and gloves, and 89 percent of voters agree that polling locations should conform with CDC guidelines.

• What's more, over 8-in-10 voters support opening additional polling locations to reduce crowds and lines (84 percent).

• Voters also oppose consolidating polling places in anticipation of poll worker shortages (69 percent oppose).
Democracy Key Findings: Voting Security

Tennessee

- Although voting by mail is not the most popular option for Tennessee voters, voters here still place a high importance on voting security as it relates to voting by mail.

- Nearly 9-in-10 voters believe ballot tracking for mail-in ballots is important (87 percent), with 62 percent of voters believing this to be very important.

- Likewise, 89 percent of voters believe it is important for election officials to notify voters if there is a problem with their submitted mail-in ballot, and 76 percent of voters find this to be very important.

Economy and Revenue
Economic and Fiscal Key Findings: Coronavirus and the Economy

Tennessee

• On the margin, Tennessee voters express more concern about health and safety (52 percent) than they do about jobs and income (43 percent).

• Tennesseans tend to believe businesses should be required to provide safe working environments and be held liable if they do not (52 percent). Fewer than 1-in-3 voters believe businesses should be protected from liability if an employee gets sick on the job (30 percent).

• Tennessee voters express strong concerns around employment and business closures in Tennessee. Nearly 9-in-10 voters are concerned about Tennesseans losing work and income (88 percent) and 85 percent of voters are concerned about small business and restaurant closures.
Economic and Fiscal Key Findings: Budget and Revenue

Tennessee

- Voters in Tennessee want more state investment in core services, even if it means they have to pay more in taxes.

- By a 3:1 margin, Tennessee voters believe state government should invest more in its residents to ensure they are safe, healthy, and economically secure (58 percent), over state government keeping taxes low and cutting funding to services like education, infrastructure, and unemployment (18 percent).

- Furthermore, 7-in-10 voters express concern about the state of Tennessee losing tax revenues and facing budget cut in the wake of the coronavirus pandemic (71 percent).

- Voters are also open to making corporations and the wealthy pay their fair share. The electorate is broadly supportive of progressive revenue streams, such as closing corporate tax loopholes, increasing taxes on companies that pollute the state’s water, and increasing taxes on the wealthiest Tennesseans and businesses.
Economic and Fiscal Key Findings: Economy and Workplace Policies

Tennessee

- A majority of voters believe state government should have a role in addressing economic barriers faced by Black people and the Black community (54 percent).

- Likewise, voters here also see a role for state government making pay equity a reality, as 77 percent of voters want state government to play a role in ensuring equal pay for equal work.

- Tennessee voters also broadly support extending the length of time laid-off workers can receive unemployment compensation and increasing the amount they receive (59 percent).

- Furthermore, Tennesseans see a role for state government promoting pro-worker policies, such as ensuring access to paid sick and family leave (69 percent) and access to affordable child care (69 percent).

- It follows that 84 percent of voters support creating an insurance plan to provide paid leave for employees, 81 percent of voters support paid leave requirements for employers, and 72 percent support eliminating tax breaks for corporations that do not provide paid sick and family leave.
Economic and Fiscal Key Findings: Health Policy

Tennessee

- Policies relating to affordable health care and insurance during the pandemic surface as some of the most resonant economic proposals tested in this poll.

- Near-consensus public opinion emerges around the following policies related to health care and insurance:
  - Banning the practice of surprise medical billing (92 percent support).
  - Extending grace periods for people to pay health insurance bills (92 percent support).
  - Offering a public health insurance options for Tennesseans (91 percent support)
  - Limiting what drug companies can charge for prescriptions (89 percent support)

Recommendations
Democracy and Voting Narrative

- Tennesseans want state government to play an active role in election administration, and most are confident in its ability to do so.

- The narrative should be centered on legislators' efforts to ensure safe and secure elections, whether Tennesseans vote in person or by mail.

- Voting early in-person emerges as the most popular voting method for November's elections, and voting in-person on Election Day is a close second. Legislators should highlight their efforts to ensure safe and sanitary in-person polling sites and open additional polling places to reduce crowds and long lines.

- Although vote-by-mail is a less popular option, legislators should still highlight their efforts to make the process more secure and efficient. Process improvements, ballot tracking, and notifications about ballot issues are all broadly popular among the Tennessee electorate.
Fiscal Policy and Economy Narrative

• Generally, Tennessee voters want more state investment in services, and they see progressive avenues for raising the revenue to make that happen.

• Concerns around unemployment and business closures loom large. We recommend centering a balanced response to the coronavirus that prioritizes the tools necessary to slow the spread of infection so that businesses can re-open safely and people can go back to work safely.

• Workplace policies should be the focal point of the fiscal policy and economic narrative: workplace liability, paid sick leave, paid family leave, and affordable child care are highly popular policies that benefit both the employee AND employer - legislators should highlight their consistent efforts to push these policies.

• Health care policy is a clear opportunity to engage. Policies that make health care more affordable during the coronavirus pandemic are strongly supported by the electorate, particularly reforms that limit what drug companies can charge for prescriptions, offer public health insurance plans, extend grace periods to pay medical bills, and end surprise medical billing,
